

THE INTERPRETATION OF EARLY MUSIC

by

ROBERT DONINGTON

CASA BEETHOVEN
ALMACÉN DE MÚSICA
L. M.^A JORDA
Ramblas, 97 - Teléfono 22 16 24
BARCELONA

FABER AND FABER

24 Russell Square

London

Contents

NOTE TO THE SECOND EDITION

page 22

BOOK ONE: STYLE

I. THE APPROACH TO EARLY MUSIC

1. Preview of an 'Early' Style 25
2. The Element of Passion in Early Music 32
3. The Element of Serenity in Early Music 34
4. Reconciling the Passion with the Serenity 35

II. THE INTERPLAY OF STYLES

1. The Baroque Problem 36
2. The Factor of Date 37
3. The Factor of Nationality: Main Currents 38
4. The Factor of Nationality: Musical Effects 42
5. The Factor of Purpose Cutting Across both Time and Place 45
6. The Galant Style 46
7. The Transition to the Classical Period 47

III. MUSIC AS EXPRESSION

1. The Theory of Affects 49
2. The Factor of Technique 54
3. Differences of Amateur Standard 55
4. Differences of Professional Standard 56
5. The Factor of Taste 57

BOOK TWO: THE NOTES

PART ONE: ACCIDENTALS

IV. ACCIDENTALS IN EARLY MUSIC

1. Mode and Key 61
2. Musica Ficta—'Feigned Music' 62
3. The Hexachord 63
4. Unfamiliar Chromatic Signs 65
5. Unfamiliar Modal Signatures 67
6. Unfamiliar Key Signatures 67
7. Written and Unwritten Accidentals 68

CONTENTS

V. INTERPRETATING WRITTEN ACCIDENTALS

1. Early Accidentals Apply Basically to Single Notes	69
	page
2. Effect of the Bar-line on Accidentals	69
3. Effect of the Hexachord on Accidentals	70
4. Effect of Repetition on Accidentals	70
5. Accidentals Occasionally Retrospective	71
6. Accidentals in Figured Bass	73

-VI. ADDING UNWRITTEN ACCIDENTALS

1. Unwritten Accidentals for Necessity and Beauty	74
2. Correcting Imperfect Intervals	75
3. The Diminished or Augmented Octave Clash	76
4. The Picardy Third	77
5. The Leading-note Principle	79
6. The Leading-note Itself	80
7. The 'Double Leading-note'	84
8. The 'Landini Cadence'	84
9. Sharp Mediants Assumed Next to Sharp Leading-notes	84
10. Accidentals Suggested by the Performer's Taste	85
11. Different 'Musica Ficta' Shown in Different Tablatures of the Same Piece	86

PART TWO: EMBELLISHMENT

VII. THE PLACE OF EMBELLISHMENT

1. The Performer's Share in the Figuration	88
2. The Primary Argument about Figuration Itself	89
3. The Secondary Argument about Performer's Embellishments	91
4. All Ornamental Figuration to be Taken Lightly	94
5. Effect of Omitting Obligatory Ornamentation	95
6. Some Early Terms for Embellishment	96
7. Solution of Ex. 20	96

-VIII. SIXTEENTH-CENTURY ORNAMENTATION

1. Sixteenth-century Ornamentation a Melodic Art	97
2. Fifteenth and Early Sixteenth Centuries	97
3. The Later Sixteenth Century	99
4. Ornamenting Polyphonic Works Today	101

CONTENTS

IX. EARLY BAROQUE ORNAMENTATION

1. Early Baroque Ornamentation Still Mainly Melodic page 104
2. Vocal Ornamentation in Early Baroque Music 104
3. Instrumental Ornamentation in Early Baroque Music 105

X. LATER BAROQUE ORNAMENTATION

1. Later Baroque Ornamentation Harmonic as well as Melodic 109
2. Vocal Ornamentation in Later Baroque Music 109
3. Instrumental Ornamentation in Later Baroque Music 111
4. Concerted Ornamentation in Chamber and Orchestral Music 114
5. National Differences in Embellishment 114
6. General Advice 115

XI. POST-BAROQUE ORNAMENTATION

1. The Declining Importance of Free Ornamentation 117

XII. THE CADENZA

1. The Typical Baroque Cadenza an Elaboration of a Close 121
2. The Later Cadenza Part of the Structure of the Movement 122
3. Entire Movements Replaced by Cadenza-like Improvisation 122
4. The Style of Baroque Cadenzas 123

XIII. ORNAMENTS

1. The Proliferation of Ornaments in Baroque Music 125
2. Some Working Rules for Baroque Ornaments 125
3. Three Primary Functions Served by Baroque Ornaments 130
4. The Main Baroque Ornaments Grouped by Families 131

XIV. A (i): THE APPOGGIATURA PROPER

1. What the Name Appoggiatura Implies 133
2. The Movement of Appoggiaturas 134

CONTENTS

3. All Appoggiaturas take the Beat	page 135
4. All Appoggiaturas are Joined to the Ensuing but not to the Previous Note	135
5. The Early Baroque Appoggiatura	136
6. The Long Appoggiatura	137
7. The Function of the Long Appoggiatura Primarily Harmonic	141
8. The Short Appoggiatura	142
9. Where to Introduce Unwritten Appoggiaturas	145
10. Appoggiaturas in Recitative	146
11. The Post-Baroque Appoggiatura	148
XV. A (ii): THE DOUBLE APPOGGIATURA
1. What the Name Double Appoggiatura Implies	151
2. Varieties of Double Appoggiatura	151
3. The Post-Baroque Double Appoggiatura	152
XVI. A (iii): THE SLIDE
1. What the Name Slide Implies	153
2. Varieties of Slide	153
3. Post-Baroque Slides	156
XVII. A (iv): THE ACCIACCATURA
1. What the Name Acciaccatura Implies	157
2. The Simultaneous Acciaccatura	157
3. The Passing Acciaccatura	158
4. The Post-Baroque Acciaccatura	159
XVIII. A (v): THE PASSING APPOGGIATURA
1. What the Name Passing Appoggiatura Implies	161
2. Evidence for the Passing Appoggiatura	161
3. Opposition to the Passing Appoggiatura	163
XIX. B (i): TREMOLO AND B (ii): VIBRATO
1. What the Names Tremolo and Vibrato Imply	164
2. The Vocal Tremolo	164
3. Instrumental Tremolo	166
4. Vibrato on Instruments	167
XX. B (iii): THE TRILL
1. What the Name Trill Implies	171
2. Pre-Baroque and Early Baroque Trills	171

CONTENTS

3. Baroque Trills of the Main Period	page 174
4. The Preparation of Baroque Trills	176
5. The Speed of Baroque Trills	181
6. The Termination of Baroque Trills	182
7. The So-called 'Corelli Clash' Resolved by the Conventional Trill	185
8. Half-trills	185
9. Continuous Trills	188
10. The Ribattuta	190
11. The Post-Baroque Trill	190

XXI. B (iv): THE MORDENT

1. What the Name Mordent Implies	195
2. Single, Double and Continued Mordents	195
3. The Inverted Mordent	196
4. The Position of Mordents	196
5. Pre-Baroque Mordents	197
6. Baroque Mordents	197
7. Diatonic and Chromatic Mordents	198
8. The Preparation of Mordents	200
9. The Speed of Mordents	200
10. The Termination of Mordents	201
11. The Post-Baroque Mordent	201

XXII. C (i): PASSING NOTES AND C (ii): CHANGING NOTES

1. Which Ornaments are here Classed as Passing Notes	203
2. The Passing Note Proper	203
3. The Tirata	203
4. Which Ornaments are here Classed as Changing Notes	204
5. The Note of Anticipation	204
6. The Springer	205
7. The Groppo	205
8. Post-Baroque Passing and Changing Notes	206

XXIII. C (iii): THE TURN

1. What the Name Turn Implies	207
2. The Accented Turn	208
3. The Unaccented Turn	209
4. Interpretation of Turns	210

CONTENTS

XXIV. C (iv): BROKEN CHORDS, C (v): BROKEN NOTES AND C (vi): BROKEN TIME
1. In What Respect the Broken Chord is an Ornament	page 212
2. The Origins of the Broken Chord in Pre-Baroque Music	213
3. The Broken Chord as an Ornament in Baroque Music	213
4. The Broken Chord in Post-Baroque Music	215
5. The Broken Note Treated as an Ornament	216
6. Broken Time Treated as an Ornament	217
XXV. D. COMPOUND ORNAMENTS
1. What is Meant by the Term Compound Ornament	218
2. Combinations with the Appoggiatura	218
3. Combinations with the Trill or Turn	219
PART THREE: ACCOMPANIMENT
XXVI. FIGURED BASS
1. Impromptu Accompaniment	222
2. The General Character of Figured Bass	223
XXVII. THE FIGURING
1. Unfigured Basses	225
2. The Signs Used in Figured Bass	226
3. The Position of the Figures	229
4. Perfect Triads (Common Chords)	231
5. Diminished Triads	233
6. Augmented Triads	233
7. Six-Three Chords (Chords of the Sixth)	233
8. Six-Four Chords	234
9. Chords of the Augmented Sixth	234
10. Chords of the Seventh	235
11. Six-Five Chords	236
12. Four-Three Chords	236
13. Four-Two Chords	237
14. 'Passing Notes' in the Bass	237
XXVIII. GOING BEYOND THE FIGURES
1. What the Figures Show	240
2. Departing from the Figures	242

CONTENTS

3. Departing from the Bass page 246
4. Accommodating Harmonic Ornaments 249
5. Adding Accented and Unaccented Passing Notes 254

XXIX. THE TEXTURE OF THE PART

1. The Importance of Texture in a Good Accompaniment 256
2. No Accompaniment ('Senza Cembalo', etc.) 256
3. Unharmonised Accompaniment ('Tasto Solo'; 'All' unisono') 257
4. How Thick the Accompaniment Should Be 259
5. How Strict the Accompaniment Should Be 263
6. The Filled-in Accompaniment 269
7. How the Accompaniment Should be Spaced 272
8. How High and How Low the Accompaniment Should Go 273
9. Texture Further to be Considered in the following Chapter 277

XXX. THE STRUCTURE OF THE PART

1. The Structural Aspect of the Accompaniment 278
2. How Smooth the Accompaniment Should Be 278
3. How the Smooth Accompaniment may be Broken 280
4. The Broken Accompaniment in Recitative 283
5. How Far the Accompaniment Should Double the Existing Melody 284
6. How Far the Accompaniment Should Possess an Independent Melodic Interest 286
7. How Contrapuntal the Accompaniment Should Be 289

XXXI. INSTRUMENTS OF ACCOMPANIMENT

1. Early Baroque Instruments of Accompaniment 293
2. Supporting the Harmonic Accompaniment with a Melodic Bass Instrument 294
3. Gamba or Cello 296
4. Adding a Double-bass 297
5. Other Effects of Sharing Responsibility for the Accompaniment 297
6. The Choice of Harmonic Instrument 298

CONTENTS

XXXII. THE GOOD ACCOMPANIST

- | | |
|----------------------------------|----------|
| 1. What Makes a Good Accompanist | page 302 |
| 2. Accompanying Recitative | 303 |
| 3. Accompaniment as Composition | 304 |

BOOK THREE: THE EXPRESSION

PART ONE: GENERAL

XXXIII. EXPRESSION IN EARLY MUSIC

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|-----|
| 1. Expression a Spontaneous Impulse | 309 |
|-------------------------------------|-----|

XXXIV. REPEATS AND OMISSIONS

- | | |
|--|-----|
| 1. Repeats and Omissions within the Performer's Option | 311 |
| 2. Regular Repeat Signs a Baroque Development | 311 |
| 3. Repeats in Dances | 313 |
| 4. Repeats in Dance-Form Music | 314 |
| 5. Varied Repeats | 314 |
| 6. Omitting Movements or Sections | 314 |

PART TWO: TEMPO

XXXV. TEMPO IN EARLY MUSIC

- | | |
|--|-----|
| 1. Tempo a Variable Quantity | 316 |
| 2. Early Tempos Only to be Judged by Good Musicianship | 317 |
| 3. J. S. Bach's Tempos | 318 |

XXXVI. TIME-WORDS

- | | |
|---|-----|
| 1. Time-Words Imply Both Mood and Tempo | 320 |
| 2. Early Baroque Time-Words | 321 |
| 3. Later Baroque Time-Words | 322 |
| 4. Metronome Equivalents for Time-Words | 324 |

XXXVII. DANCE TEMPOS

- | | |
|---|-----|
| 1. Dance-Titles as Guides to Tempo | 326 |
| 2. The Almain (Allemande, etc.) | 327 |
| 3. The Ayre | 327 |
| — 4. The Brawl (Branle, Brando, etc.) | 327 |

CONTENTS

• 5.	The Bourrée	page 328
6.	The Canaries	328
7.	The Courante (Coranto, etc.)	328
8.	The Chaconne	329
9.	The Entrée	330
10.	The Fury	330
— 11.	The Galliard (Saltarello, Cinq-pas, etc.)	330
• 12.	The Gavotte	331
13.	The Hornpipe	331
14.	The Jig (Gigue, etc.)	332
15.	The Loure	332
16.	The March	332
17.	The Minuet	332
18.	The Musette	333
19.	The Passacaille (Passacaglia)	334
20.	The Passepied (Paspy)	334
— 21.	The Pavan	334
22.	The Rigaudon (Rigadoon)	335
23.	The Rondeau (Rondo)	335
24.	The Saraband	335
25.	The Tambourin	336
• 26.	The Volta	336
27.	Metronome Equivalents for Dance Tempos	337

XXXVIII. TIME-SIGNATURES

1.	Origin of Our Time-Signatures in Proportional Notation	339
2.	The Fundamental Confusion between Measure and Tempo	342
3.	The Subsidiary Confusion over Time-Signatures in the Form of Fractions	343
4.	Contradictory Uses of C and Ċ, etc.	344
5.	Time-Signatures in Triple Time	348
6.	Discrepant Time-Signatures	352
7.	Concurrent Time-Signatures	352
8.	Baroque Time-Signatures in Practice	353

XXXIX. PULSE

1.	Pulse Not Deliberately Made Audible	354
2.	The Four-time Pulse and the Two-time Pulse	354
3.	The Terms 'Alla Breve' and 'Alla Capella', etc.	356
4.	The 'Alla Breve' in Practice	358
5.	The Hemiola	358

CONTENTS

XL. VARIATIONS OF TEMPO

1. The Need for Expressive Flexibility in Baroque Tempo	page 359
2. Flexibility of Tempo in Unmeasured and Measured Preludes	360
3. Flexibility of Tempo in the Monodic Style, etc.	360
4. Flexibility of Tempo in Recitative	360
5. Flexibility of Tempo in Baroque Music Generally	363
6. Changes of Tempo between Sections, etc.	363
7. Variations of Tempo within the Passage	363
8. Borrowed Time	364
9. Stolen Time	366
10. Rallentandos	367

PART THREE: RHYTHM

XLI. RHYTHM IN EARLY MUSIC

1. Flexibility the Key to Early Rhythm	369
2. Rhythms Left Entirely to the Performers	369
3. Rhythms Left Partly to the Performer	369
4. Rhythms Loosely Notated for Mere Convenience	370

XLII. NOTE-VALUES

1. Methods of Showing Different Note-values in Proportional Notation	371
2. Baroque and Modern Methods of Showing Different Note-values	371
3. Arbitrary Note-values at the Ends of Phrases, etc.	373
4. A Conventional Mis-notation in Recitative	374

XLIII. DOTTED NOTES

1. The Baroque Dot a Variable Symbol	375
2. What Baroque Notes are 'Over-dotted'	375
3. 'Over-dotting' Itself Variable in Extent	375
4. Late Baroque Instructions for Dotted Notes	376
5. Dots as Silence of Articulation	378
6. General Baroque Preference for the Variable Dot	379
7. Post-Baroque 'Over-dotting'	380

XLIV. OTHER SHARPENED RHYTHMS

1. The Piquant Contrasts of French Overture Style	382
2. Rests Prolonged before Dotted Figures, etc.	383

CONTENTS

XL. VARIATIONS OF TEMPO

1. The Need for Expressive Flexibility in Baroque Tempo page 359
2. Flexibility of Tempo in Unmeasured and Measured Preludes 360
3. Flexibility of Tempo in the Monodic Style, etc. 360
4. Flexibility of Tempo in Recitative 360
5. Flexibility of Tempo in Baroque Music Generally 363
6. Changes of Tempo between Sections, etc. 363
7. Variations of Tempo within the Passage 363
8. Borrowed Time 364
9. Stolen Time 366
10. Rallentandos 367

PART THREE: RHYTHM

XLII. RHYTHM IN EARLY MUSIC

1. Flexibility the Key to Early Rhythm 369
2. Rhythms Left Entirely to the Performers 369
3. Rhythms Left Partly to the Performer 369
4. Rhythms Loosely Notated for Mere Convenience 370

XLII. NOTE-VALUES

1. Methods of Showing Different Note-values in Proportional Notation 371
2. Baroque and Modern Methods of Showing Different Note-values 371
3. Arbitrary Note-values at the Ends of Phrases, etc. 373
4. A Conventional Mis-notation in Recitative 374

XLIII. DOTTED NOTES

1. The Baroque Dot a Variable Symbol 375
2. What Baroque Notes are 'Over-dotted' 375
3. 'Over-dotting' Itself Variable in Extent 375
4. Late Baroque Instructions for Dotted Notes 376
5. Dots as Silence of Articulation 378
6. General Baroque Preference for the Variable Dot 379
7. Post-Baroque 'Over-dotting' 380

XLIV. OTHER SHARPENED RHYTHMS

1. The Piquant Contrasts of French Overture Style 382
2. Rests Prolonged before Dotted Figures, etc. 383

CONTENTS

XLV. INEQUALITY

1. Inequality an Aspect of Rhythmic Freedom page 386
2. Which Notes Should be Made Unequal 386
3. The Lifting Rhythm (Lourer) 387
4. The Snapped Rhythm (Coulter) 388
5. Inequality in Pre-Baroque Music 388
6. Inequality in Early Baroque Music 389
7. Inequality in Later Baroque Music 390
8. How Widely ought Inequality to be Applied? 394
9. Post-Baroque Inequality 397

XLVI. TRIPLET RHYTHM

1. Two Against Three not a Normal Baroque Rhythm 398
2. Preliminary Notes in Triplet Rhythm 402
3. The Triplet Convention in the Post-Baroque Period 403

PART FOUR: PUNCTUATION

XLVII. PHRASING

1. Phrasing must be Audible 404
2. Phrasing Signs 404
3. Phrasing Left to the Performer 405

XLVIII. ARTICULATION

1. Grouping by Ligatures 407
2. Words of Articulation 407
3. Signs of Articulation 407
4. Articulation Implied by Keyboard Fingering 410
5. Articulation Implied by Bowings 410
6. Articulation Left to the Performer 411
7. Baroque 'Ordinary Movement' Somewhat Articulate 414

PART FIVE: DYNAMICS

XLIX. VOLUME

1. Fitting the Volume to the Music 416
2. Words of Volume 416
3. Signs of Volume 417
4. Range and Flexibility of Early Dynamics 419

CONTENTS

5. Louds and Softs	page 419
6. Crescendos and Diminuendos	421
7. The 'Messa di Voce'	422
8. The Finer Shadings	422
L. BALANCE
1. Suggestions for Balance shown in Notation	425
2. Written Indications of Balance	425
3. Balance Left to the Performer	425
LI. ACCENTUATION
1. Words Suggesting Accentuation	429
2. Accentuation Suggested by the Music	429
3. The Agogic Accent	430
4. The Weight Accent	430
5. The Sforzando	430
6. The Attack Accent	431
BOOK FOUR: INSTRUMENTS
LII. INSTRUMENTS IN EARLY MUSIC
1. Music and its Instruments	435
2. Substitutions Must be as Suitable as Possible	437
3. Early Technique Should be Taken Into Account	438
LIII. PITCH
1. The Effect of Pitch on Performance	439
2. Actual Pitch and Nominal Pitch	439
3. Pitches in Late Renaissance and Early Baroque Music	441
4. Pitches in Music of the Main Baroque Period	442
5. Pitches in Post-Baroque Music	443
6. Pitch in Practice	445
LIV. TEMPERAMENT
1. Why Temperament is Necessary	447
2. Mean-Tone Temperament	447
3. Modifications of Mean-Tone Temperament	448
4. Equal Temperament	448
5. Temperament in Practice	448

CONTENTS

LV. THE VOICE
1. The Italian 'Bel Canto'	page 450
2. Early Vocal Technique	451
3. The Trill	454
4. The Vibrato	456
5. The Portamento	456
6. The Necessary Element of Chest Voice	457
7. The Castrato Voice	457
8. The Male Alto and the High and Low Counter-tenor	458
9. Underlay of the Words	458
10. A Declamatory Edge to the Articulation	459
11. Polyphonic Music also Declamatory	460
12. The White Voice	460
LVI. THE VIOLS
1. The Family of Viols	461
2. The Viols in Consort	462
3. The Gamba, etc. , as Soloist	463
4. The Gamba as a Continuo Bass	463
5. The Cellamba	463
6. The Purpose of the Frets	464
7. The Gamba in the Post-Baroque Period	464
LVII. THE VIOLINS
1. A Style of Violin-playing for Baroque Music	465
2. The Fittings of the Baroque Violin	465
3. The Baroque Violin Bow	466
4. The Use of Gut Strings	467
5. Holding the Violin, etc.	468
6. Holding the Bow	468
7. Left-hand Technique	469
8. Right-hand Technique	470
9. Chords and Polyphony on the Violin, etc.	475
10. The Double-bass	478
LVIII. PLUCKED INSTRUMENTS
1. The Lute	479
2. The Vihuela	481
3. The Guitar	481
4. The Cittern	481
5. The Harp	481

CONTENTS

LIX. THE WIND DEPARTMENT

- | | |
|---|-----------------|
| 1. The Changed Character of Many Wind Instruments | page 482 |
| 2. How Efficient are Early Wind Instruments? | 482 |
| 3. Breathing | 484 |
| 4. Tonguing | 485 |
| 5. Early Wind Instruments in Practice | 485 |

LX. FLUTES

- | | |
|--------------------------|-----|
| 1. Embouchure and Fipple | 487 |
| 2. Transverse Flutes | 487 |
| 3. The Recorders | 488 |
| 4. Pipe and Tabor | 489 |

LXI. REEDS

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-----|
| 1. The Influence of Reeds and Bore | 491 |
| 2. The Shawms | 491 |
| 3. The Oboe | 492 |
| 4. The Bassoon | 493 |
| 5. The Crumhorn (Cromorne) | 493 |
| 6. The Clarinet | 494 |

LXII. BRASS

- | | |
|--|-----|
| 1. Brass Cylindrical and Conical, Narrow and Broad | 495 |
| 2. The Cornetts | 495 |
| 3. The Serpent | 496 |
| 4. The Bugles (Tubas, etc.) | 497 |
| 5. The Horn | 497 |
| 6. The Trombone | 498 |
| 7. The Trumpet | 499 |

LXIII. PERCUSSION

- | | |
|--|-----|
| 1. Military, Dance and Orchestral Percussion | 502 |
| 2. The Kettledrum for Orchestral Music | 502 |
| 3. The Tabor, etc. , for Dancing | 502 |
| 4. Turkish Music: The Triangle, Cymbals, etc. | 503 |

LXIV. KEYBOARDS

- | | |
|--------------------|-----|
| 1. The Harpsichord | 505 |
| 2. The Clavichord | 509 |

CONTENTS

- | | |
|--------------|-----------------|
| 3. The Piano | page 512 |
| 4. The Organ | 512 |
| 5. Fingering | 514 |

LXV. CHOIRS AND ORCHESTRAS

- | | |
|---|-----|
| 1. Late Renaissance and Early Baroque Ensembles | 517 |
| 2. The Standard Baroque Foundation of Strings | 518 |
| 3. The Unstandardised Wind | 519 |
| 4. The Indispensable Continuo | 520 |
| 5. The Conductor | 521 |
| 6. Some Typical Baroque Choirs and Orchestras | 521 |

LXVI. ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS AND CONCLUSION

- | | |
|---------------------|-----|
| 1. Acknowledgements | 525 |
| 2. Conclusion | 526 |

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-----|
| APPENDIX I. LIGATURES | 527 |
| II. REALISATIONS OF FIGURED BASSES | 530 |
| III. EXAMPLES OF ORNAMENTATION | 532 |
| IV. ORCHESTRAL IMPROVISATION | 538 |

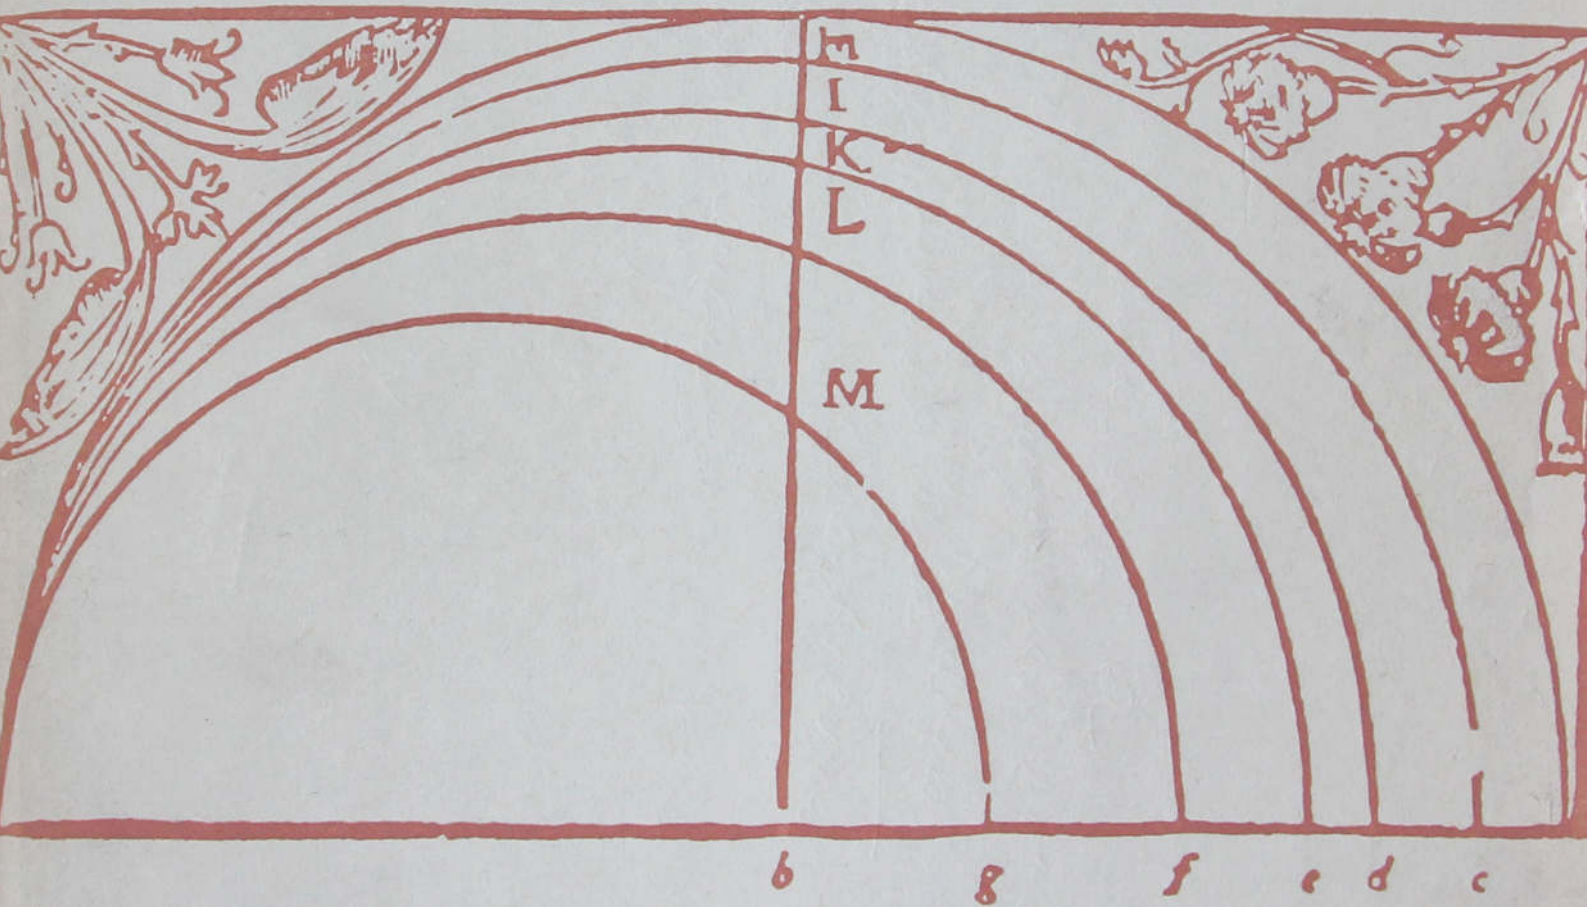

SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHY 542

INDEX OF ORNAMENTS (SIGNS) 573

GENERAL INDEX 581

María A. Ester Sala

LA ORNAMENTACION EN LA
MUSICA DE TECLA IBERICA DEL
SIGLO XVI

SOCIEDAD ESPAÑOLA DE MUSICOLOGIA
Madrid, 1980